

resume

In the present stage of civilization, pollution become a global phenomenon. sources of pollution vary. local polluting agents quickly spread in the environment and occupy new areas. environmental pollutants considered all the new physical, chemical and biological agent that would meet some of the ecosystem and its content is not typical. Direct object of the pollution of land, water, soil, atmosphere; And indirect object plants, animals, microorganisms and people.

environmental pollution is the unwanted substances and energy loss process, which is caused by the actions of human, environmental pollution as a result of certain ecosystems, as well as the entire biosphere irreversible destruction of their physical-chemical parameters change. Pollution is lost fertile land, declining ecosystems and the entire biosphere Productivity. Pollution, directly or indirectly, affects the human as the basic manufacturer of physical and moral condition.

This thesis concerns the nature of transport and communication of the environmental problems caused. The article deals with the situation of the natural environment and ecological problems. The relevant recommendations and measures to solve existing problems